County and IBWC need help keeping river clean

Dona Ana County and the International Boundary and Water Commission have received complaints that residents have been leaving trash and other debris on the levees. It is imperative that when you enjoy the areas around the Rio Grande that you respect this natural resource and do not litter or leave trash behind.

There are specific areas on the river that are designated parks where residents can walk, run, hike, ride horses and bicycle on the levee. Other areas are restricted to the public.

Doña Ana County Sheriff's Department will respond to complaints and concerns along the river.

Help preserve the areas around the river by being responsible and taking your trash with you and disposing of it properly.

County Airport seeks Advisory Board applicants

The Airport Advisory Board for the Doña Ana County International Jetport at Santa Teresa seeks applicants for two seats that will expire in July, to serve on the seven-member body. Applications are due by 5 p.m. on Friday, June 5.

Board members work closely with the jetport manager, County engineer, planning director and a representative of the County Attorney's Office to identify safety, growth, development or administration issues relevant to the airport.

The Board serves a staggered three-year term, meets monthly and periodically reports to the Board of County Commissioners. Selected applicants will serve from July 2020 to July 2023.

All meetings of the Airport Advisory Board comply with the New Mexico Open Meetings Act, which means, among other things that the Board's agendas for regular and special meetings are available to the public, at least seventy-two hours prior to each meeting and they are posted on the Doña Ana County website. The meetings are also open to the public.

A plane awaits its next trip at the Doña Ana County International Jetport at Santa Teresa. PHOTO: JOSEPH VARGAS, Doña Ana County.

Applicants may reside in Doña Ana County or El Paso and information requested includes an interest in serving and knowledge of aviation and airport issues, along with the applicant's qualifications to serve. Licensed pilots are encouraged to apply.

For more information, please call Doña Ana County International Jetport Manager William Provance at (575) 644-2358 or email him, at williamp@donaanacounty.org.

Long-time local legislators trail in unofficial Primary returns

Editor's note: Final Primary Election results were delayed in Doña Ana and five northern New Mexico counties due to the unprecedented number of voters who voted using an absentee ballot, according to New Mexico Secretary of State Maggie Toulouse Oliver. For the most up-to-date results, visit lascrucesbulletin.com.

By 2 p.m. June 2, 250 people had trickled in to vote in person at Las Cruces City Hall. Social distancing habits were generally observed, and poll workers were on duty to hand out ballots.

Las Cruces Bulletin

The 2020 Democratic Primary was apparently a mixed bag for incumbent Democrats who represent Doña Ana County in the New Mexico Legislature and who hold county offices, as unofficial results from the New Mexico Secretary of State's Office show several incumbents were trailing their opponents as The Bulletin went to press.

Unofficial results show state Sen. John Arthur Smith, D-Luna, Hidalgo, Sierra, Doña Ana, trailing Noemi O. Parra-Martinez, a Lordsburg teacher, by a wide margin in the Democratic Primary in Senate District 35. Smith has held the seat for 32 years.

In the District 38 Democratic Primary, state Sen. Mary Kay Papen, D-Doña Ana, was trailing Las Cruces Green Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Carrie Hamblen by 139 votes. Papen has held that seat for 20 years and is Senate president pro-tem.

State Sen. Joseph Cervantes, D-Doña Ana, appeared headed for an easy win against two opponents in the Senate District 31 Primary. Cervantes is chair of the Senate Judiciary Committee with eight years of service in the state Senate and 12 years in the New Mexico House of Representatives before that.

State Sens. Jeff Steinborn (District 36) and Bill Soules (District 37) did not have opponents in the Democratic Primary. Steinborn will likely face Republican Kimberly A. Skaggs in November. She was well ahead of Roger Martin Baker II in that Primary race in unofficial returns.

There was only one contested Primary in local New Mexico House races, as incumbent Ray Lara was ahead of former state Rep. Bill Gomez in the District 34 Democratic Primary. Both are from La Mesa.

In county races, incumbent County Commissioner Ramon S. Gonzalez was trailing Anthony Mayor Diane Murrillo-Trujillo in the District 2 race.

In the District 4 county commission Democratic primary, unofficial totals show Debra Ann Hathaway with a small lead over former county Magistrate Judge Susana Chaparro, with Sam Bradley in third place. In the Republican Primary for that seat, Stacie Michelle Durham was ahead of Richard J. Reynaud by less than 40 votes in unofficial returns, with Jesus O. Oropeza in third place. The District 4 county commission general election race will also include Libertarian Buck Bonner, who was unopposed in his Primary. Incumbent District 4 Commissioner Isabella Solis, who could have run for re-election, filed instead for state representative, District 37. She was elected to the county commission as a Democrat in 2016 but switched to Republican after an unsuccessful campaign for mayor of Las Cruces last year.

District 5 County Commissioner Manuel Sanchez did not have an opponent in the Democratic Primary.

Incumbent County Clerk Amanda Lopez Askin received more than 83 percent of the vote against Andrew J. Ostic in that Democratic Primary. Incumbent County Treasurer Eric L. Rodriguez was more than 1,600 votes ahead of Gina Ortega in unofficial returns in the Democratic Primary.

Gerald M. Byers had no opponent in the Democratic Primary in the race for third Judicial District Attorney, and also has no General Election opponent, making Byers the presumed new D.A., taking office next Jan. 1 and succeeding Democrat Mark D'Antonio, who is completing his second four-year term and did not seek re-election.

While Democratic winners in the District 2 county commission seat and district attorney Primaries won't have opponents in November, there will be contested General Election races for county clerk, treasurer and county commission Districts 4 and 5. All local legislative races are contested in November.

Unofficial totals show statewide voter turnout for the Primary was almost 37 percent and was almost 26 percent in Doña Ana County. Almost 994,000 voters were eligible to cast ballots in the Primary.

Here are unofficial results in contested Primary races as of 10 a.m., Wednesday, June 3:

Democrats

- State Senate, District 31 (Doña Ana): Joseph Cervantes (i) 1,229; Melissa Ontiveros 600; and Arturo E. Terrazas 307
- State Senate, District 35 (Luna, Hidalgo, Sierra, Doña Ana): John Arthur Smith (i) 2,266; Noemi O. Martinez-Parra 2,709
- State Senate, District 38 (Doña Ana): Mary Kay Papen (i) 1,369; Carrie Hamblen 1,508; Tracy Lynn Perry 229
- State Representative, District 34 (Doña Ana): Ray Lara (i) 787; Bill Gomez 495
- Doña Ana County Commission, District 2: Ramon S. Gonzalez (i) 584; Diane Murrillo-Trujillo 734. The winner has no Republican opponent in November.
- Doña Ana County Commission, District 4: Susie Chaparro 1,440; Debra Ann Hathaway 1,451; Sam Bradley 519
- County Clerk: Amanda Lopez Askin (i) 11,131; Andrew J. Ostic 2,182
- County Treasurer: Eric L. Rodriguez (i) 7,562; Gina Ortega 5,894

Republicans

- U.S. Senate: Mark V. Ronchetti 83,546; Elisa Maria Martinez 38,861; Gavin Clarkson 26,072. In the General Election, Ronchetti will face current U.S. Rep. Ben Ray Lujan, who had no opponent in the Democratic U.S. Senate Primary, and Bob Walsh, who had no opponent in the Libertarian Primary. Incumbent Democrat Tom Udall is retiring.
- U.S. House of Representatives, New Mexico District 2: Yvette Herrell 26,177; Claire Chase 18,489; Chris Mathys 13,800. Herrell, a former Otero County legislator, will be in a rematch with U.S. Rep. Xochitl Torres Small, D-N.M., in the General Election. Torres Small of Las Cruces, who had no opponent in the Democratic Primary, defeated Herrell to win the seat in 2018. It had previously been held by Steve Pearce, who is now chair of the New Mexico Republican Party.
- State Senate, District 36: Kimberly A. Skaggs 1,451; Roger Martin Baker II 905
- Doña Ana County Commission, District 4: Stacie Michelle Durham 1,160; Richard J. Reynaud 1,121; Jesus O. Oropeza 258

Mayfield High grad is presidential scholar; will attend Harvard this fall

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Mayfield High School 2020 graduate Mireya Cosima Sánchez-Maes was one of two high school seniors named a New Mexico presidential scholar this year. The other recipient is Zachary J. Auster of Albuquerque Academy, against whom Sánchez-Maes competed in numerous speech and debate competitions in the past few years.

Sánchez-Maes was the 2020 Mayfield valedictorian and honor graduate.

"Now that I've graduated, I'll be participating in Google's Computer Science Summer Institute, a summer program typically held at Google headquarters (now held online) for historically underrepresented college students in computer science," Sánchez-Maes said. "I was also chosen by the National Youth Science Foundation as one of two New Mexico delegates to participate in a series of interactive seminars and lectures traditionally held at the National Youth Science Center in Davis, West Virginia (also now online)."

This fall, Sánchez-Maes will attend Harvard University with a full scholarship to study computer science and molecular/cellular biology.

"I'd like to pursue an MD/Ph.D. and eventually perform clinical research to benefit New Mexico's medically underserved populations," she said.

"The students of Las Cruces Public Schools can accomplish incredible things with the right support," Sánchez-Maes said. "I've had many really amazing teachers and mentors throughout my four years in high school – both at Mayfield and within the Las Cruces community – who deserve a big thank you. So many of my endeavors would not have been possible without their support."

"I was the principal of Albuquerque Academy's high school division for nearly 20 years before retiring to Las Cruces last summer, so I have known scores of incredibly talented kids over the years," said Sonya Roth. "I met Mireya early last fall and she quickly became my absolute favorite of all time because she is not only brilliant and extremely talented, but also genuinely kind, modest, funny and thoughtful toward others. She's the best."

Sánchez-Maes took first place in humorous interpretation and second in both congressional debate and informative speaking and was named outstanding speaker in Lincoln-Douglas Debate at the New Mexico Championship Speech and Debate Tournament, held Feb. 29 in Albuquerque

As directed by Presidential Executive Order, the 2020 U.S. Presidential Scholars are comprised of one young man and one young woman from each state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, and U.S. families living abroad, as well as 15 chosen at-large, 20 scholars in the arts and 20 scholars in career and technical education.

The U.S. Presidential Scholars Program was established in 1964 to recognize and honor the nation's most distinguished graduating high school seniors. In 1979, the program was extended to recognize students who demonstrate exceptional talent in the visual, creative and performing arts. In 2015, the program was again extended to recognize students who demonstrate ability and accomplishment in career and technical education fields. Each year, up to 161 students are named as presidential scholars, one of the nation's highest honors for high school students.

Raul Casillas of Mayfield High School was named a 2020 U.S. Presidential Scholars Program distinguished teacher in New Mexico. He was nominated by Sánchez-Maes.

Aggies' Gonzales named college baseball's best

RICHARD COLTHARP
From the Publisher

GONZALES

There are about 300 Division I college baseball teams.

That translates to more than 8,000 players.

Only one of those, however, can be named player of the year.

And that player for 2020 is a New Mexico State University Aggie.

Collegiate Baseball Newspaper last week named Aggie junior Nick Gonzales as its 2020 National Player of the Year.

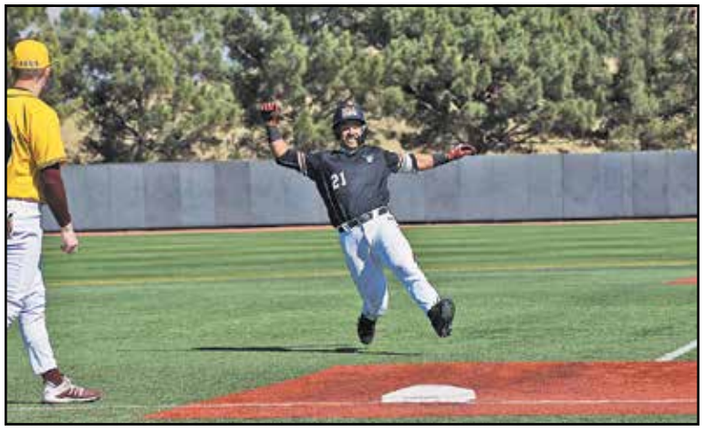
Gonzales is no stranger to national accolades. He was a first team All-American last year as a sophomore, and named a freshman All-American in 2018. In addition, he was named a 2020 preseason All-American, and was the National Player of the Month in both February 2019 and February 2020.

The Aggies' last four home games of the season, Feb. 27-March 1, against Purdue-Fort Wayne, provided a perfect showcase for Gonzales' skills. During that series, Gonzales was 7-for-15 from the plate, with five home runs, 8 runs scored, 10 RBI, 6 walks and 3 stolen bases.

The triple is often called "the most exciting hit in baseball." And while it is very exciting, it's one base less exciting than the inside-the-park home run. And when the inside-the-park homer is a grand slam, well, that tops it all. And that's exactly what Gonzales did Feb. 29, a day he finished with five homers as NMSU swept a double-header.

Gonzales finished the pandemic-shortened 16-game season with 12 homers, 36 RBI, 21 walks, and five stolen bases, helping the Aggies assemble a 12-4 record. In addition, Gonzales plays arguably the toughest defensive position, shortstop. In the field, he handled 71 chances with only two errors, for a .972 fielding percentage. He has a nation's best on-base streak of 82 consecutive games.

And, oh yeah, he also joined Aggie teammate Tristan Peterson on the College Sports Information Directors of America 2020 Academic All-District Team. Gonzales is majoring in individualized studies, with a 3.33 GPA, and was an academic All-Western Athletic Conference honoree last year.



NMSU PHOTO

New Mexico State University Aggie baseball star Nick Gonzales, here sliding into third base at NMSU's Presley Askew Field, was named Collegiate Baseball Newspaper's 2020 National Player of the Year.

Gonzales attended Cienega High School in Vail, Arizona, about 20 miles southeast of Tucson.

Each year, I attend a handful of Aggie baseball games, and it's one of my favorite things to do in Las Cruces. The Organ Mountains loom beyond the outfield fence and, if it's a night game, you can see the moon rise. And in the daytime, coverings at the stadium minimize direct sunlight on fans. I regret I didn't make it to any games this year, especially during that Gonzales showcase weekend.

Years ago, while still in college at Oklahoma State University, I covered the OSU baseball team, which that year also had a national player of the year, Pete Incaviglia, and the Cowboys' coach was NMSU grad and Hall of Famer Gary Ward.

Watching Incaviglia then, and Gonzales now, was like watching a man among boys, the way they could dominate the diamond and, at the same time, have a great time on the field and inspire their teammates.

Congrats, Nick, and Go Aggies!

BABE

BAXTER BLACK
On the Edge of Common Sense

Years ago, the movie "Babe" was nominated for several Academy Awards, including Best Picture. It was very popular and made a lot of money. It stars a pig named Babe. A gilt to be more specific, a feeder pig maybe weighin' 80-100 pounds. But it was a cute pig. It talked, of course, was kind and brave. And to top it off, it did heroic deeds and yet maintained a sensitivity that would make the Pope blush.

All this anthropomorphism, giving a pig human qualities, is necessary if movie makers expect an audience to relate to the hero. It made me wonder if the movie had a deleterious effect on the price of pork. I made a couple calls, but the pork producers were non-committal.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Inconvenient stimulus

To the editor:

Those expecting economic-stimulus payments in the form of a check may instead receive an innocuous-looking envelope containing a VISA debit card instead. That's what happened to my wife and I just this week. At first glance, it looks like junk mail. Open the envelope from Money Network Cardholder Services, and it looks like some marketing scheme to get you to start using the Metabank VISA debit card to buy things.

What looks like some scam turns out to be legit. It is an Economic Impact Payment (EPI) debit card loaded with your stimulus money. You have to go online and jump through hoops to activate the debit card sent on behalf of the Treasury Department, but unlike their claims, the card is neither "convenient" nor easy to use. Why hasn't this incompetent Administration publicized this? Who in this corrupt Administration is benefiting from this scheme?

You have to dig through the IRS website to find any info about this method of providing C.A.R.E. Act money that's being sent to four million taxpayers. The EIPCard website says it's easy to transfer money from the card to your bank account. No, it's not. It doesn't work. So, if you need money from the card to pay rent, put in savings or for cash to live on, you have to make a series of trips to an ATM to withdraw funds a little at a time. This is ridiculous, infuriating and inconvenient. Of course, beware of hidden fees when you use this card.

This is a bad idea in so many ways. Shame on the Trump Administration for pulling this fast one on an uninformed public. So, be on the lookout for this card and don't toss it in the trash. And, let your government reps know what you think about it!

Stock Market

To the editor:

With the economy in such bad shape, why is the stock market is gaining strength? All indicators like jobless rates, weak service and mfg. sectors, drop in consumer income, etc. points to poor earnings for investors. What factors are at work here? Remember that 84 percent of stocks are owned by 10 percent of investors and the top 1 percent has 40 percent of the nation's wealth. The primary option for their wealth are treasury and corporate bonds, where yields are poor because we have low interest rates. Actual yields for these low-risk bonds are less than 1 percent. Therefore, the plutocrats are taking a chance on the future of stocks. However, the market does not measure the wellbeing of most Americans.

The official U.S. unemployment rate is 15 percent, but when you include those not officially in the work force — it's closer to 20 percent. Many of these workers also lost their employer-based health insurance. In other developed countries the unemployment rate is below 5 percent, because their government policies made sure workers got paid during the pandemic. These countries also have universal health care. The U.S. didn't do that, because they were more worried about (primarily large) business owners and banks than workers. We also spent more stimulus funds per worker than these countries did. Top-down economic policies and inequality is alive and well in the U.S. and has been for many years.

The Federal Reserve just tossed a glass of cold water in the face of anyone predicting a swift recovery. The Fed recently said, "The ongoing crisis brought on by the pandemic shutdowns has caused steep job losses with economic activity falling sharply across the map." And business owners report their outlook for recovery remains "highly uncertain."

They had an up market this spring. But I would not have been surprised if it had. The sheep and veal people have known for years that it is hard to convince the public to eat something cute.

Rabbit raisers are careful to avoid any advertising, including the words BunnyBurger or BBQ'd Bunny Ribs or Bunny on a Grill. Even in the frozen north, they've never developed a market for the Baby Seal Club Sandwich. Australians have never had trouble eating lamb, mostly because they're so numerous over there, they are thought of more often as ants or road-kill. Yet in my three trips 'Down Under,' I saw no Koala Kabobs. Too cute.

The Chinese seem to eat anything under the sun from thousand-year-old eggs to objects that crawl on the sea floor, but I've never heard of a Panda Patty.

The reverse is also true: it is easier to eat something less cuddly. That may be part of the success of the chicken business. In books, movies and stories, chickens are seldom portrayed in flattering roles. They're usually stupid or pompous, i.e. Foghorn Leghorn, Chicken Little, Huey, Dewey and Louie. Even the Little Red Hen turns out to be a Republican.

The eel is another good example. The oyster, the goat, fish in general, most reptiles and the spotted owl in certain parts of the country.

But I do suspect the pork producers were worried about their business while "Babe" was showing in thousands of theaters to hundreds of thousands of young, impressionable kids. Had to be. I know French restauranteurs worried when "Black Stallion" was showing.

Both laws and attitudes on policing need to change

WALT RUBEL
The View From Here

Fans of horror movies know there are always early scenes that tip you off to the terrible things that will come later.

I had that feeling last week as I watched the press conference held by prosecutors in Minnesota. I assumed that it was called to announce an arrest in the murder of George Floyd. I was wrong.

They opened by announcing that there was nothing to announce. That was bad. Then they started talking and made things worse.

"There is other evidence that doesn't support a criminal charge," County Attorney Mike Freeman said.

And my heart sank. Here we go again. They're going to try to defend even this.

We've seen this movie before. Call it Friday the 13th, Part 709. That's for the 709 black people killed by police in the United States since the start of 2017, according to the website Statista.

It's always the same. The officer feared for his life. He had to make a split-second decision. The last thing that went through his mind before using deadly force was his wife and children, and making sure he got back to them alive at the end of the shift.

That's an incredibly powerful argument, especially when applied on those of us who have never walked in their shoes. But how are they going to explain away this one?

Three officers are kneeling on Floyd while he is handcuffed and face-down on the pavement. A fourth officer stands guard. Two are kneeling on his body. The third, Derek Chauvan, kneels on his neck for more than eight minutes until he dies. The officer ignores the man's pleas that he can't breathe. In the end, Floyd calls out for his deceased mother as he feels the life ebbing from his body. He then goes limp. Chauvan keeps his knee on the neck for nearly three minutes longer.

Was he still afraid then?

This wasn't one bad apple. It was four officers working in coordination to execute what looked to be an oft-used technique.

The county attorney filed charges the day after the press conference, but they were too little (third-degree murder and second-degree manslaughter for Chauvan only) and too late. Still, he boasted that it was the fastest they have ever been able to charge a police officer with a crime. It usually takes months, he said.

That's the problem. Our desire for law and order has led us to pass laws that protect police officers who commit acts of even lethal brutality. I have no doubt that attorneys for Chauvan will mount a vigorous defense based on the laws of Minnesota, where neck restraint is allowed. And, I won't be surprised if his trial results in either a hung jury or acquittal.

We used to think this would end with body cameras and cellphone videos. These officers knew they were being videoed, and it didn't give them a moment's pause.

When the press conference was over, I knew what was coming next. If this wasn't over the line, then there is no line. And if there is no line, there's anarchy: stupid, senseless, destructive anarchy.

And not just in Minnesota. Anger and frustration regarding decades of racist and brutal policing erupted across the nation.

Police need better pay and training, with a focus on community policing. But that's not enough. This isn't going to end until we change both laws and attitudes and start treating police officers like violent criminals every time they commit violent crimes.

City economic review shows recovery could take nearly five years

Officials from an Albuquerque-based nonprofit think tank said Las Cruces could see a temporary and permanent loss of about 8,000 jobs because of COVID-19, and that it could take about four and one-half years for the city to achieve full economic recovery from the pandemic.

In what the city called an "economic flash assessment," Paul Hamrick of Community Economics Laboratory (CELab) said key industry leaders in Las Cruces think all the local jobs that can come back from the public health emergency by themselves will have done so by June 2022 and that a full recovery by January 2025 must be driven by a comprehensive local strategy. He said the assessment is based on a consensus of 15 leaders in various economic sectors of the city economy who gathered recently by Zoom for nearly seven hours. It also includes city economic data and input from a local economist, Hamrick said. He made the presentation along with CELab Executive Director Grant Taylor at the Las Cruces City Council's May 26 work session.

Taylor said the city should be commended for "trying to orient yourself to respond to this crisis," which he said places Las Cruces at the leading edge of both the state and the country.

To plan for the recovery, Mesilla Valley Economic Development Alliance (MVEDA) CEO Davin Lopez said the city should focus on 1) the hugely developing trend of "onshoring" – large U.S. companies keeping operations in the U.S. instead of moving them overseas, to lessen the likelihood of a supply-chain interruption; 2) the national move toward working at home; and 3) food security and sustainability, for which he said Las Cruces-El Paso-Chihuahua are well-positioned.

New Mexico needs to enact major policy changes, including changes in its tax policy, to "get out in front of this discussion and not fall behind," Lopez said.

The city's response to COVID-19 is also "an opportunity to build your workforce to where there are going to be employers who want to employ your residents," Taylor said. Lopez said that will mean working closely with the Bridge of Southern New Mexico, New Mexico State University and Doña Ana Community College "to figure out new skill sets that need to be developed."

City council creates Las Cruces Economic Recovery Board; applications welcomed

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Las Cruces City Council has unanimously passed a resolution creating the Las Cruces Economic Recovery Ad Hoc Board.

The 14-member board will make specific recommendations to the council on strategies for gradually reopening the Las Cruces economy affected by the COVID-19 pandemic "in a smart, safe and effective manner that fits the needs of Las Cruces" and is aligned with direction from the state Economic Recovery Council appointed by Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham. The local council will dissolve "upon full reopening" of the Las Cruces economy, according to city documents.

Membership will include one member each of United Food and Commercial Workers Union, a local nonprofit organization, the business community (an employee), the healthcare sector, the state Workforce Solutions Department, the mental/behavioral health sector and the Business Recovery Committee convened by the Las Cruces Greater Chambers of Commerce; along with seven business owners, with one each selected by a councilor as a member from his or her district.

Members of the board do not have to be residents of the City of Las Cruces.

Anyone interested in serving on the board can apply at www.onboard.lascruces.org/board/2957.

Activism in Las Cruces

Russell Bell, 70, moved to Las Cruces from Waterloo, Iowa, which he said is the most racist place he's ever lived. He was at the southeast corner of North Main Street and Picacho Avenue alone on Thursday, May 28. A passerby took his picture and posted his story to Facebook, prompting more than two dozen people to join him on Friday morning, May 29, at 8 a.m. The size of the protests grew daily. They were collectively protesting the murder of Minneapolis resident George Floyd, whose death was caused by a white police officer kneeling on his neck while Floyd begged for air.

Behavioral health collaborative working to address needs based on survey

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

An assessment of the community's behavioral health system shows there are a lot of gaps to fill, but a new coalition of providers, nonprofits, local governments and other interested groups and individuals is working together with a vision of restoring and enhancing services throughout Doña Ana County.

The assessment was presented at a Zoom meeting of LC3, the behavioral health collaborative that organized countywide late last year with funding from Paseo del Norte Foundation, and with Families and Youth, Inc. (FYI) of Las Cruces serving as "the backbone agency." More than 50 people participated.

BOREN

The survey showed that since the administration of former Gov. Susana Martinez statewide shutdown of behavioral health services in 2013:

• A gap has developed between needs and services, with fewer specialized and experienced provider support and services available for patients and available providers/agencies at risk of being overloaded;

• Collaboration has been disrupted, including a loss of trust and communication between providers and patients that has impeded referrals;

• Patients have been put at risk because of a lack of support and increased difficulty in accessing services, including language barriers, insurance and Medicaid issues and transportation;

• There has been a lack of government accountability, funding and resources for behavioral health;

• Responses to the shutdown have included improvised collaboration among agencies to provide services and more training and classes for providers.

Survey respondents said an ideal system would 1) be patient centered; 2) have inclusive services (no barriers to low-income, uninsured or underinsured, undocumented immigrants, Spanish speakers, homeless, patients with criminal records or those who lack transportation to services); 3) provide training and education programs about behavioral and mental health; 4) provide comprehensive care; 5) provide collaboration among agencies, providers and patients; 6) facilitate access to services and referrals; and 7) be community focused, including schools and universities.

The survey was conducted by New Mexico State University's Southwest Outreach Academic Research Evaluation and Policy Center (SOAR). It included 61 participants from 29 different providers, agencies, departments and organizations, including 15 that work with children, 16 with adults and 18 equally with both. About half the survey participants have more than 10 years of experience in behavior and mental health.

Assessment results were presented during the LC3 meeting by SOAR Director Rachel Boren, Ph.D., and Germain Degardin, senior program specialist.

Boren said a phase-two survey likely will be conducted in late 2020, with the results of the current assessment being used to enhance participation in phase two. Combined results can be used to "prioritize what areas need to be addressed first and what's most critical," Boren said, and to begin work on a strategic plan for countywide behavioral health services that includes timelines and deliverables.

"We definitely want your feedback very, very much," Boren said.

Dr. Amy Cohen, Ph.D., a clinical psychologist with the American Psychiatric Association, presented information on a new initiative called SMI Adviser, which is funded by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA).

"SMI Adviser aims to improve the delivery and uptake of evidence-based practices and person-centered care for individuals with schizophrenia, bipolar disorder and major depression," Cohen said. Resources for clinicians, including free accredited learning activities, vetted resources and on-demand consultations, as well as resources for families and individuals, can be found at www.smiadviser.org.

"One of the things that's near and dear to me is mental health and developing a seamless continuum of care," said Las Cruces Mayor Pro-Tem Kasandra Gandara, a licensed social worker. The city is "very committed"

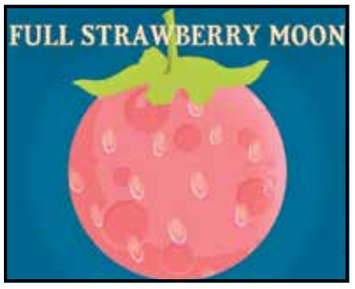
Full moon is June 5; solstice on its way

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin



Who wouldn't swoon for a full moon in June?

It's the Full Strawberry Moon that fills the sky, officially peaking at 1:12 p.m. MDT Friday, June 5.

It's the last full moon of spring, as the summer solstice occurs at 3:43 p.m. MDT Saturday, June 20.

June's full Moon is traditionally called the Strawberry Moon, according to www.almanac.com.

"This name originated with Algonquin tribes in eastern North America who knew it as a signal to gather the ripening fruit of wild strawberries," the website says. "Alternative European names for this moon include the Honey Moon and the Mead Moon. It has also been called the Rose Moon. June was traditionally the month of marriages and is even named after the Roman goddess of marriage, Juno. Following marriage comes the "honeymoon," which may be tied to this full moon's name."

The word solstice, meanwhile, comes from the Latin solstitium, from sol (sun) and stitium (to stop), "reflecting the fact that the sun appears to stop at this time (and again at the winter solstice)," according to www.almanac.com.

The summer solstice — the longest day of the year — occurs when the sun is directly over the Tropic of Cancer, the northern-most circle of latitude on planet Earth. At this point, the northern hemisphere is tilted toward the sun to its maximum extent.

"The astronomical start of a season is based on the position of the Earth in relation to the Sun," the website said. "More specifically, the start of each season is marked by either a solstice (for winter and summer) or an equinox (for spring and autumn). A solstice is when the Sun reaches the most southerly or northerly point in the sky, while an equinox is when the Sun passes over Earth's equator. Because of leap years, the dates of the equinoxes and solstices can shift by a day or two over time, causing the start dates of the seasons to shift, too."

The fall equinox will occur at 7:30 a.m. MDT on Tuesday, Sept. 22. That means summer 2020 will be a few hours short of 95 days long.

Wasps on the move

Paper wasps (family Vespidae, genus Polistes) are building nests around Las Cruces under the eaves of houses and in other protected areas. They get their name because they make scrapings from trees, old wood, etc., which they chew into a pulp and create paper. The wasps are considered beneficial, because they feed on garden insects. The wasps can sting but are generally not aggressive if left alone. They will sting when handled. Visit www.arthropods.nmsu.edu and www.buglab.nmsu.edu.

Post COVID Quarantine
Working through the backlog of delayed healthcare.

The COVID-19 pandemic has delayed many physician appointments, elective procedures, and medical tests. As restrictions ease, working through this backlog will be a challenge. For people who have pain or orthopedic issues, their best option may be to see a physical therapist first.

Physical therapists are highly trained specialists who are well equipped to be the first point of contact for patients with musculoskeletal issues. Most states - including New Mexico - have direct access laws that allow patients to see a PT, when appropriate, without seeing a physician first. In addition, research shows that people who see a PT have better outcomes, recover quicker, and spend less money. If people are using insurance to pay for their care, they should check with the insurance company to learn if a physician's referral is required.

Better Outcomes
Because back pain is so common, there is a lot of outcome data from people with back pain. A study of 150,000 insurance claims published in Health Services Research, found that those who saw a physical therapist at the first point of care had an 89 percent lower probability of receiving an opioid prescription, 28 percent lower probability of having advanced imaging services, and a 15 percent lower probability of an emergency department visit.

Faster Recovery
The Mitchell Study published in Physical Therapy looked at outcomes when patients went to a PT first. It found that patients who went to their physician before their PT spent 65% more time recovering, and had 60% more office visits than patients who went directly to their PT.

Less Expensive
There are many studies showing that the faster you get to your PT, the less money you spend. A study published in the Journal of Orthopaedic and Sports Physical Therapy showed that patients who obtained physical therapy via direct access had significantly lower medical costs— an average of $1,543 less per patient than those who chose referral from a physician. The Mitchell study mentioned above found that the total cost for physician referral to physical therapists was 123% or 2.2 times higher than the paid claims for people who went straight to PT.

As the healthcare system tries to work through the backlog of delayed visits and procedures, using physical therapists as the first provider for patients with pain or orthopedic issues could take some of the pressure off of primary care physicians and orthopedists. It could also lead to better outcomes, quicker recoveries, and cost savings for patients. That's a winning solution for everyone involved.

Atrium Physical Therapy is open and ready to serve! If you are uncertain as to how physical therapy can help you, we are happy to schedule a 30-minute, no obligation, Discovery session with a physical therapist. We can hold the session in person, or via a 'telehealth' call if you like. Call us at 575-525-2450 and our staff will be happy to get you set up and moving towards recovery!

Sparks fly as crews cut off large, metal nubs in the floor of the pit of the South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA) Amador Avenue Transfer Station. With a line of trash trucks stretching past the Las Cruces Utilities Water Quality Laboratory and concrete still drying on the floor of the transfer station, it was a high-speed turnover to switch out the 23-year-old trash compactor for a new unit weighing 130,000 pounds, with a price tag of $1.9 million. Every day, the transfer station sends 30 18-wheelers, each hauling 20 tons of trash, to the Corralitos Regional Landfill, located 15 miles west of Las Cruces alongside I-10.

Las Cruces' Citizens Bank steps up big on PPP

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Citizens Bank of Las Cruces has approved about 10 percent of all the Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) loans made in New Mexico, a top bank official said. And, "the money is going to small businesses which is where it needs to go."

As of Tuesday, June 2, Citizens had awarded approximately 850 PPP loans totaling about $76 million, said Citizens Executive Vice President and Chief Credit Officer Tim Hargrove, and those numbers are increasing daily.

"The total number of jobs that have been retained in our community as a result of these PPP loans is 11,000+," Hargrove said.

The loans are funded by the bank and are 100 percent guaranteed by the Small Business Administration (SBA), said Hargrove, who has been a banker for 32 years. The loans have gone to businesses of all kinds in Las Cruces and throughout New Mexico, El Paso and Colorado.

And, Hargrove said, Citizens has welcomed both bank customers and non-customers who need the money to apply for it, including people who are self-employed.

In addition to PPP loans, Hargrove said the bank has also been proactive in reaching out to its customers to determine if they need payment deferrals on loans or other modifications as they deal with COVID-19.

"We understand if you can't open your business, if you can't get a paycheck, how are you supposed to pay your bills?" Hargrove said. "I don't want people to have to worry about their loans right now. We want to do everything we can to help our customers get through this unprecedented pandemic. Not only does this help businesses, it has also been instrumental in allowing numerous individuals in our community keep their jobs."

The PPP was created by the U.S. Treasury Department as part of the federal CARES Act, Hargrove said, with the SBA handling approval processing through their ETRAN system. Funds authorized by the U.S. Treasury and Congress total $670 billion for this loan program. And even though there have been several problems with the SBA processes and guidance, Hargrove said he has "never seen the SBA move like this" in facilitating the program. He said the FDIC and other bank regulators have also been extremely supportive.

"Early in the process, I reached out to our chief regulators and had conversations with them about what we wanted to do, and they have been very accommodating," Hargrove said.

The FDIC told him "'Do whatever you have to do to take care of your customers. We're going to work with you,'" he said. "It has been so encouraging to see the amount of support we have received from our regulators."

Under PPP, a business takes its average monthly payroll and multiplies by 2.5 to determine the amount of the loan it should apply for. He said the SBA is requiring that 75 percent of the loan proceeds be spent on payroll, with the remaining 25 percent being used for utility bills, mortgage interest payments and rent. He said the Independent Community Bankers Association is advocating for the removal of the restriction on these requirements.

"We are still waiting on guidance from the SBA regarding documentation necessary for the forgiveness process," Hargrove said. He said he is hopeful the majority of the loans will be 100 percent forgiven.

Hargrove said he also will not be surprised if there is another round of PPP loans at some point in the future.

Survey to determine food security in New Mexico amid COVID-19

BULLETIN REPORT

Researchers at New Mexico State University and the University of New Mexico have launched a survey to better understand the impact of COVID-19 on food security and access in New Mexico, and they are inviting state residents to participate.

Survey links:

"Crossing Swords"

This stop-motion-animated comedy series follows the adventures of a good-hearted peasant who realizes his coveted position of squire at the royal palace comes with definite drawbacks in the form of libidinous monarchs, crooks and charlatans. Worse, he's now the black sheep of his criminal family and his siblings are intent on making him suffer. Nicholas Hoult, Breckin Meyer and Adam Pally head the voice cast. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: Brick Mansions"

Set in a dystopian Detroit of the near future, this 2014 French-Canadian action film — a remake of the superior 2004 French film "District 13" — follows a heroic undercover cop (Paul Walker) who joins forces with an ex-con (David Belle, essentially recreating the character he played in "District 13") to rescue the latter's kidnapped girlfriend (Catalina Denis) and save the city from apocalyptic destruction. RZA also stars. .

"Movie: Gloria"

From Chile comes this 2013 comedy/drama about a free-spirited older Santiago woman and the realities of her whirlwind romance with a former naval officer who she meets out while clubbing. Chilean stage legend Paulina García ("I'm Not Lorena") stars as the title character, in a cast with Sergio Hernández, Diego Fontecilla and Fabiola Zamora for director Sebastián Lelio ("The Year of the Tiger").

"Movie: The Conjuring"

The director who launched the "Saw" franchise, James Wan, shows he has what it takes to freshen up another horror concept with this paranormal investigation melodrama ... asurprisingly strong force at the 2013 summer box office. Vera Farmiga and Patrick Wilson — also one of Wan's "Insidious" stars — play supposed experts on the supernatural who end up in over their heads when they probe a family's haunted farmhouse.

Trackers

Adapted from a crime novel by author Deon Meyer, this new series, a South African-U.S.-German co-production, follows three story lines that ultimately collide in a violent conspiracy that includes diamond smuggling, black rhinos, the CIA and international terrorism. Among the main characters in this thriller are Milla Strachan (Rolanda Marais), a middle-aged woman fleeing domestic abuse in search of a new start; Flea Van Jaarsveld (Trix Vivier), an expert wildlife tracker; and Janina Mentz (Sandi Schultz), an intelligence director.

12 a.m. on HBO
Betty

This critically well-received series adaptation of Crystal Mosells's acclaimed feature film "Skate Kitchen" closes out its first season with "Ladies on Fire," a finale that finds most of the main characters getting together for another of their all-girl skate sessions.

tonight's picks

"Yvonne Orji: Momma, I Made It!"

4 p.m. on TCM
Movie: D-Day, the Sixth of June

Lionel Shapiro's novel "The Sixth of June" served as the basis for director Henry Koster's character-driven 1956 combat drama, which explores the thoughts and personal history of members of a Special Forces team dispatched to take out a German gun emplacement on the Normandy coast, hours before D-Day is to commence. The cast includes Richard Todd, a real-life veteran of the Normandy landing, along with Robert Taylor, Dana Wynter and Edmond O'Brien.

6 p.m. on APL
The Zoo

Central Park Zoo marks a series of firsts as it welcomes the facility's first-ever Atlantic puffin chick in a new episode called "A Rare Egg." Elsewhere, Perry the rhino undergoes a series of tests to discern what he is allergic to, and an endangered species of gecko welcomes her own very first hatchling.

7 p.m. on HALL
Movie: Country at Heart

This 2020 romance stars Jessy Schram ("Chicago Med") as Shayna, a struggling songwriter who's considering abandoning her fledgling career when a chance encounter with Grady (Niall Matter) presents a big break. He's currently working on a song for country star Duke Sterling (Lucas Bryant) and invites Shayna to be his writing partner. Romance blooms, but when Duke takes a shine to her and invites her to join his tour as an opening act, Shayna faces a tough decision.

9 p.m. on HBO
Movie: Ad Astra

James Gray's 2019 sci-fi adventure is one of those baffling examples of a critically acclaimed film failing to click with mainstream audiences, but while it may have lost money on its initial theater run, this beautiful movie is finally finding a new audience on cable and home video. Brad Pitt stars as an astronaut who ventures into space in search of his long-lost father (Tommy Lee Jones), who was last associated with a project that now threatens the solar system.

11 p.m. on HBO
Yvonne Orji: Momma, I Made It!

Interspersed with personal footage shot in Yvonne Orji's native home of Nigeria during a January trip there, this new one-hour comedy special — filmed before a live audience at the Howard Theatre in Washington, D.C. — finds the "Insecure" star reflecting on her identity as a Nigerian-American, which comes with an addiction to international haggling. Orji also shares stories of how her parents tapped her phone when she was a child, and explains the fine line between cursing people out and literally putting curses on them.

Olivia Newton-John and John Travolta

7 p.m. on KVIA
Celebrity Family Feud

Tonight's new double-bill opens with a battle of the reality TV stars as Andy Cohen ("Watch What Happens Live With Andy Cohen") teams with some of his SiriusXM radio colleagues to benefit Big Brothers Big Sisters of America, competing against Kyle Richards and some of her "The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills" co-stars playing for Children's Hospital Los Angeles. Then, Drew Carey ("The Price Is Right") leads a team playing for La Maida Project against Kevin Nealon and his crew playing for Hope Hospice.

7 p.m. on ESPN
30 for 30

Acclaimed at the 2020 Sundance Film Festival, Bao Nguyen's documentary "Be Water" takes an intimate, very personal look at the life and instincts that motivated martial arts pioneer and pop culture icon Bruce Lee. The film starts with a chronicle of Lee's early years as the son of a Chinese opera star born while his father was on tour in San Francisco. Subsequently raised in Hong Kong, Lee was sent to live in America at age 18, when he began teaching kung fu in Seattle.

7 p.m. on FOOD
Worst Cooks in America

To kick off a new episode called "Sweet Showdown," the four remaining recruits play a dessert-scramble game before being assigned to create their own sweet parfaits. Next, chefs Anne Burrell and Tyler Florence challenge the final two recruits on each team to compete head to head for a spot in the finale, using an assigned ingredient in a composed meal. The two most successful recruits move on for the upcoming season finale.

7:30 p.m. on KDBC
Movie: Grease Sing-Along

Originally, tonight was scheduled to include the annual Tony Awards telecast honoring the best of the latest Broadway season, which was cut short by the coronavirus pandemic. That same health emergency brought down the curtain on that live special, but CBS has come up with replacement programming that still salutes Broadway — sort of. This rebroadcast of the blockbuster 1978 movie adaptation of the musical "Grease" airs here with follow-along lyrics to encourage viewers at home to sing along. John Travolta, Olivia Newton-John and Stockard Channing star.

10 p.m. on ESPN2

11:03 p.m. on NGC
Gordon Ramsay: Uncharted

Chef Gordon Ramsay hits the road again to continue his global culinary expedition in Season 2 of this well-received series, which finds him feasting his way through South Africa, Indonesia, Norway and other locations. The season premiere finds him in Tasmania, off the southern coast of Australia, where he dives into shark-infested waters seeking giant saltwater spiny lobsters. The episode climaxes with Ramsay facing off against culinary nomad Analiese Gregory to prepare an epic feast.

11:30 p.m. on HBO
I May Destroy You

Rising British star Michaela Coel is executive producer, writer and star of this new drama series about sexual consent, exploring how the distinction between liberation and exploitation often gets blurred in the modern dating world. Coel stars as Arabella Essiedu, a confident, free-spirited Londoner who is on the cusp of a promising writing career, until someone spikes her drink with a date-rape drug, calling every element of her life into question. Weruche Opia, Paapa Essiedu, Aml Ameen, Adam James, Sarah Niles and Ann Akin co-star.

7 p.m. on KVIA
The Bachelor: The Greatest Seasons — Ever!

Wow, that title definitely risks over-promising to "Bachelor" fans, but once the coronavirus pandemic put the brakes on production of the new season of "The Bachelorette," executive producers were forced to think outside the box. The result was this "greatest hits" retrospective, in which each weekly episode looks back over a full season from the "Bachelor" franchise's 18-year history. Chris Harrison returns in his familiar role as host, but filming his new scenes from the famous driveway outside the "Bachelor" mansion.

7 p.m. on FOOD
Big Time Bake

Buddy Valastro ("Cake Boss") is host and chief judge of this new culinary competition, in which some of the best bakers in the country are challenged to create imaginative cookies, decadent cupcakes and a showpiece cake, all inspired by a surprise theme that's announced at the start of each episode. Once the clock starts, the bakers have six hours to work, during which Valastro and two guest judges from a rotating roster stop by each station every two hours to assess their progress. Judges include Lorraine Pascale and Dan Langan.

8 p.m. on AMC
Creepshow

Originally produced for a streaming service, this TV adaptation of some chilling stories by Stephen King ends its first season on AMC with a double bill that opens with "Skincrawlers," about an overweight man who discovers that the miraculous new weight loss treatment he is undergoing has some unexpected complications. Dana Gould stars. Then, in "By the Silver Water of Lake Champlain," a young woman whose father died looking for a lake monster may suffer a similar fate. Sydney Wease stars.

tonight's picks

Tracy Morgan

7 p.m. on FOOD
Chopped

Four football-loving chefs know in advance they have to bring their A-game if they're going to prevail in the high-pressure Chopped kitchen in the new episode "Raise Your Game." The appetizer basket is packed with foods to keep hungry sports fans fueled, and there's more of the same in the entree basket, along with some winning wings. The dessert round calls for cookies that will pair well with a cocktail. Ted Allen is the host.

7 p.m. on HGTV
Good Bones

Mother-daughter home renovation experts Karen E. Laine, a lawyer, and Mina Starsiak Hawk, a real estate agent, continue buying up dilapidated Indianapolis properties and transforming them into gorgeous family residences as they open a new season. In the season premiere, the pair buy their most expensive house to date, a bungalow in the trendy Fountain Square neighborhood. The location is great, but the structure itself needs serious work, including addressing some urgent foundation issues.

8 p.m. on KVIA2
Movie: Jim Gaffigan: Noble Ape

For this sixth comedy special, which makes its broadcast TV premiere here, Jim Gaffigan eschews his usual comic meditations on the ordinary and mundane (don't expect jokes about Hot Pockets, in other words) in favor of something unexpected: riffing on a medical crisis that recently shook up his family. It's still funny, of course, but it's humor pressed into service against the unthinkable. This hourlong set launches a seven-week "CW Happy Hour" summer series featuring Louie Anderson, Bryan Callen and other comics in future weeks.

8 p.m. on FOOD
Supermarket Stakeout

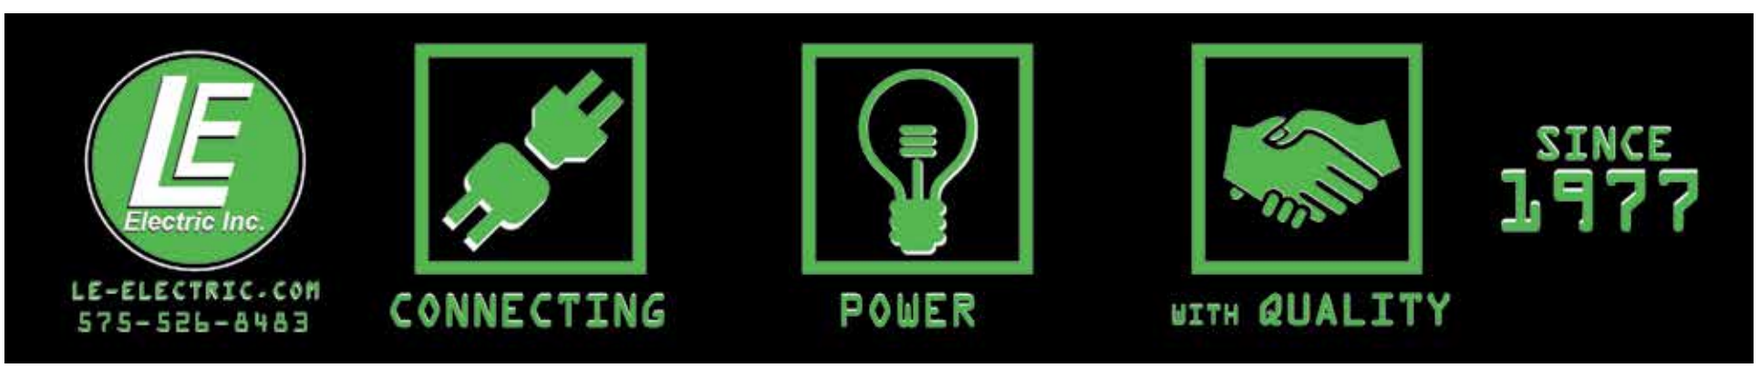
The new episode "Market Meltdown" finds host Alex Guarnaschelli at Bristol Farms in Calabasas, Calif., where she welcomes the competing chefs to a parking lot party. The chefs then stake out promising looking shoppers they hope will provide ingredients for a weekend brunch challenge. Ultimately, it's crunch time as the final two chefs struggle against the pressure and try not to melt down.

8 p.m. on HGTV
Bargain Mansions

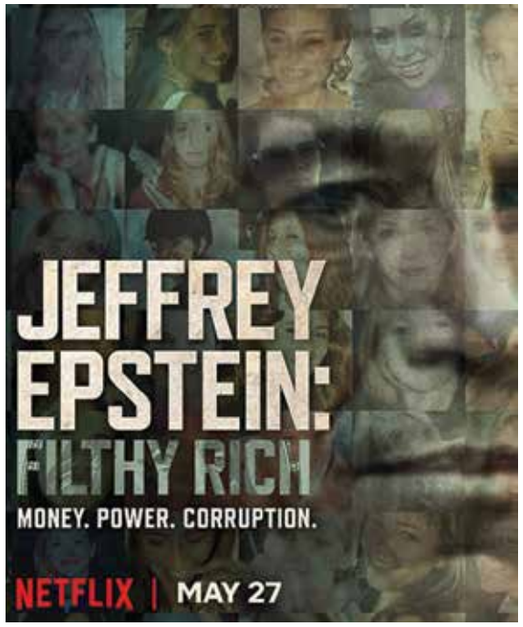
In the new episode "Rhapsody in Beige and a Pain in the Deck," Tamara Day knows she really has her work cut out for her when she accepts a job to make over a contemporary home that is pretty much devoid of any interesting architectural character. Nevertheless, with her trademark ingenuity, she pulls off quite a transformation, installing huge windows, resurfacing a fireplace veneer and also creating a home theater and an immense deck and patio for entertaining.

8:30 p.m. on TBS
The Last O.G.

Cousin Bobby (Allen Maldonado) is understandably elated when he gets an early release from prison, but his happiness dims sharply when he realizes that most of his old friends assume he won his freedom by being a snitch in the new episode "Warning." Meanwhile, Tray (Tracy Morgan) is forced to deal with a formidable bully in the form of his new girlfriend's ex-husband, who also happens to be a cop.



What's Available NOW On NETFLIX



"Jeffrey Epstein: Filthy Rich"

From director Lisa Bryant ("Unspeakable Crime: The Killing of Jessica Chambers") comes this four-part docuseries in which women give their firsthand accounts of sexual abuse by mysterious tycoon Jeffrey Epstein, whose death was ruled a suicide while in jail after being arrested for his crimes in 2019. (ORIGINAL)

"13 Reasons Why"

The fourth and final season of this young adult drama finds the senior class of Liberty High readying for graduation and many tearful goodbyes. But that will mean they'll have to keep a dangerous secret buried and face heartbreaking decisions that could impact their futures forever. Dylan Minnette, Alisha Boe and Brandon Flynn are among cast returnees. (ORIGINAL)

"Lenox Hill"

This documentary series captures the highs and lows of working at New York City's renowned Lenox Hill Hospital through the lives of four medical professionals — two brain surgeons, an emergency room physician and a chief resident OBGYN — showing each physician's struggle to balance their personal and professional lives, and delving into each patient's personal journey. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: Da 5 Bloods"

From director Spike Lee ("Do the Right Thing," "BlacKkKlansman") comes this drama movie about a group of four veterans who return to Vietnam looking for the remains of their former squad leader, as well as a buried treasure they left behind. Chadwick Boseman, Isiah Whitlock Jr., Delroy Lindo and Clarke Peters head the talented cast. (ORIGINAL)

Noel Clarke

The competition begins as the chefs are tasked with making their personal childhood favorite incorporating a hand-picked ingredient provided by Fieri. In the next round, they're given an unusually small bag to hold ingredients as they shop for their best rice dish. The two finalists face a last challenge to fuse their native cuisine with that of their opponent for a shot at a $20,000 shopping spree.

8 p.m. on KVIA2
Bulletproof

Noel Clarke and Ashley Walters return as childhood friends turned detectives Aaron Bishop and Ronnie Pike as this British crime drama opens Season 2.

In the season premiere, what starts out as a routine drug bust pays off an unexpected dividend for the National Crime Agency team when they find 1 million pounds hidden in one of the dealers' cars. The subsequent investigation leads them to a crime family with a matriarch who's an old acquaintance of Sarah Tanner.

8 p.m. on TRAV
Bigfoot is Real

Bobby Hamilton and Jim Lansdale, founders of the Gulf Coast Bigfoot Research Organization (GCBRO), lead a team of "commandos" on a mission to find and kill a Bigfoot, to offer scientific evidence of the creatures' existence as well as to protect the public from any future attacks in this new series. In the premiere, "Giant Swamp Creature," the team investigates a Bigfoot encounter on a farm near the Sabine River, where they run into a former teammate who now is a Bigfoot no-kill advocate.

8 p.m. on TRU TV
At Home With Amy Sedaris

From butter lambs to Jesus beards, host Amy Sedaris is full of tips about how to prepare the perfect Easter holiday celebration in this new episode. Not surprisingly, Amy incorporates some of her own favorite traditions, including a biannual egg hunt and a scrumptious Easter brunch. Her sister turns up as a surprise guest, bringing Easter cheer, plus a chilling Sedaris family secret.

11 p.m. on FX
What We Do in the Shadows

Season 2 of this horror comedy bids "good eeeeve-ning" with a finale called "Théatre des Vampires," an episode that finds Laszlo, Nadja, Nandor and Colin Robinson (Matt Berry, Natasia Demetriou, Kayvan Novak, Mark Proksch) struggling to survive without the ever-vigilant Guillermo (Harvey Guillen) around to have their backs. It's not an ideal time for fatal distractions, as they also must get ready for the most exclusive annual event on the vampire social calendar.

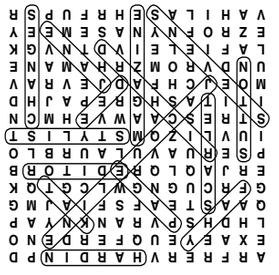
7 p.m. on HGTV
Design at Your Door

HGTV stars provide virtual help, as well as a delivered box of specially curated decor elements, to 16 homeowners who try their hand at do-it-yourself design. Each episode pairs the featured homeowners with a designated design coach, who oversees the DIY design process while the homeowners perform the physical tasks themselves. The featured families include a firefighter, a cafeteria worker, an ER nurse, and several parents who are juggling their makeover project with homeschooling their kids. David Bromstad, Tiffany Brooks and Tamara Day are among the designers. Another episode follows.



8 p.m. on KVIA
Don't

Executive produced by Ryan Reynolds and hosted by Adam Scott ("Parks and Recreation"), this new game show is dedicated to proving that sometimes there's great value in knowing when to do nothing. Each episode finds members of a four-person team working together to build their collective bank (winnings). If they fail one of their challenges — like "Don't Blink" or "Don't Look Back" — they don't win money, but pay some ridiculous consequence.

11 p.m. on FREEFRM
The Bold Type

The soapy Freeform drama returns to complete its fourth season with new episodes that find Jane struggling to accept her new, post-mastectomy body while getting a handle on her new responsibilities at Scarlet. Sutton loves being married to Richard and her new stylist position, until shocking news blows up that happy world.

"Happiness Continues: A Jonas Brothers Concert Film"

Concert performances — including footage of a pop-up show in Chicago — and candid interviews with Nick, Joe and Kevin Jonas and their inner circle paint an intimate portrait of the brothers as they embark on their "Happiness Begins" comeback tour in 2019 in this new documentary from director Anthony Mandler ("All Rise"). (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: The Hustle"

The 1988 Michael Caine-Steve Martin comedy hit "Dirty Rotten Scoundrels" gets a female-centric makeover in director Chris Addison's 2019 comedy, which casts Anne Hathaway and Rebel Wilson (also a producer on the project) as a pair of con women out to bamboozle an internet millionaire (Tony Award-winning Broadway actor Alex Sharp, "The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time"). Ingrid Oliver, Emma Davies, Dean Norris and Timothy Simons also star.

"Movie: Indie Film Artists: The DMV Truth"

From director Corey Williams ("King of Baltimore," "Senior Cut Day: The Movie") comes this 2012 documentary that puts the spotlight on actors, composers, producers, directors, writers and other artists involved with the independent film industry in the D.C.-Maryland-Virginia (DMV) area.

"The Durrells"

The future looks bright for the fun-loving Durrells as the fourth and final season of this British comedy-drama series comes to Amazon. Keeley Hawes returns for one more go-round as Louisa Durrell, a woman who moved with her four sons to the Greek island of Corfu following her husband's death. Milo Parker, Josh O'Connor, Daisy Waterstone and Callum Woodhouse also star.

Plaintiff,

v.

BARRY WALTON AKA BARRY E. WALTON, KAREN WALTON AKA KAREN P. WALTON, VICTORIA AVELLANEDA, PORTFOLIO RECOVERY ASSOCIATES, LLC, Defendants.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned Special Master will on June 23, 2020 at 9:00 am, outside the main entrance of the 3rd Judicial District Courthouse, 201 W. Picacho, Las Cruces, NM, sell and convey to the highest bidder for cash all the right, title, and interest of the above-named defendants in and to the following described real estate located in said County and State:
Lot 58 in Block 2 of Northrise Estates Unit 4, located in the City of Las Cruces, Dona Ana County, New Mexico, as the same is shown and designated on the plat thereof filed for record in the office of the County Clerk of Dona Ana County, New Mexico on January 16, 2003 and recorded in Book 20 at Pages 224-225, Plat Records.
The address of the real property is 2564 Millennium St., Las Cruces, NM 88011. Plaintiff does not represent or warrant that the stated street address is the street address of the described property; if the street address does not match the legal description, then the property being sold herein is the property more particularly described above, not the property located at the street address; any prospective purchaser at the sale is given notice that it should verify the location and address of the property being sold. Said sale will be made pursuant to the judgment entered on September 27, 2019 in the above entitled and numbered cause, which was a suit to foreclose a mortgage held by the above Plaintiff and wherein Plaintiff was adjudged to have a lien against the above-described real estate in the sum of $273,699.02 plus interest from July 8, 2019 to the date of sale at the rate of 3.75000% per annum, the costs of sale, including the Special Master's fee, publication costs, and Plaintiff's costs expended for taxes, insurance, and keeping the property in good repair. Plaintiff has the right to bid at such sale and submit its bid verbally or in writing. The Plaintiff may apply all or any part of its judgment to the purchase price in lieu of cash.
At the date and time stated above, the Special Master may postpone the sale to such later date and time as the Special Master may specify.
NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this sale may be subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other condition that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, at the time of sale, this sale will be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Special Master and the mortgagee giving this notice shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.
NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the real property and improvements concerned with herein will be sold subject to any and all patent reservations, easements, all recorded and unrecorded liens not foreclosed herein, and all recorded and unrecorded special assessments and taxes that may be due. Plaintiff and its attorneys disclaim all responsibility for, and the purchaser at the sale takes the property subject to, the valuation of the property by the County Assessor as real or personal property, affixture of any mobile or manufactured home to the land, deactivation of title to a mobile or manufactured home on the property, if any, environmental contamination on the property, if any, and zoning violations concerning the property, if any.
NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the purchaser at such sale shall take title to the above-described real property subject to rights of redemption.

NOTICE OF SALE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned Special Master will on July 14, 2020 at 10:00 AM, outside the main entrance of the 3rd Judicial District Courthouse, 201 W. Picacho, City of Las Cruces, County of Dona Ana, State of New Mexico, sell and convey to the highest bidder for cash all the right, title, and interest of the above-named defendants in and to the following described real estate located in said County and State:
Lot numbered 35 of Ranchers Club Subdivision, Phase One, Las Cruces, Dona Ana County, New Mexico, as the same is shown and designated on the plat of said Ranchers Club Subdivision, Phase One, filed in the Office of the County Clerk of Dona Ana County, New Mexico on October 20, 1988 in Plat Book 19, Folio 185-186.

The address of the real property is 4955 South Fork, Las Cruces, NM 88012. As additional security for the Note, the parties agreed and intended to include the manufactured home, identified as a 1999 Oakwood manufactured home, with VIN#OB1P0212AB, as part of the collateral granted by the Mortgage and Plaintiff holds a first equitable lien on said manufactured home. Plaintiff does not represent or warrant that the stated street address is the street address of the described property; if the street address does not match the legal description, then the property being sold herein is the property more particularly described above, not the property located at the street address; any prospective purchaser at the sale is given notice that it should verify the location and address of the property being sold. Said sale will be made pursuant to the judgment entered on April 20, 2020 in the above entitled and numbered cause, which was a suit to foreclose a mortgage held by the above Plaintiff and wherein Plaintiff was adjudged to have a lien against the above-described real estate in the sum of $84,874.08 plus interest from February 15, 2020 to the date of sale at the rate of 3.500% per annum, the costs of sale, including the Special Master's fee, publication costs, and Plaintiff's costs expended for taxes, insurance, and keeping the property in good repair. Plaintiff has the right to bid at such sale and submit its bid verbally or in writing. The Plaintiff may apply all or any part of its judgment to the purchase price in lieu of cash.
At the date and time stated above, the Special Master may postpone the sale to such later date and time as the Special Master may specify.
NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this sale may be subject to a bankruptcy filing, a pay off, a reinstatement or any other condition that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, at the time of sale, this sale will be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Special Master and the mortgagee giving this notice shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.
NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the real property and improvements concerned with herein will be sold subject to any and all patent reservations, easements, all recorded and unrecorded liens not foreclosed herein, and all recorded and unrecorded special assessments and taxes that may be due. NMSU music professor, conductor releases new album

Las Cruces Bulletin

New Mexico State University assistant professor of violin and NMSU Philharmonic Orchestra Conductor Simon Gallo is releasing a new album, "Chausson," featuring the music of French romantic composer Ernest Chausson (1855-99).

The album was recorded in Granada, Spain, and was "a very big production," Gallo said, that took many years to complete and included rehearsals and production in New York City and other cities in both North and South America.

The album includes Chausson's "Concerto Op.21" for violin, piano and string quartet and "Chanson Perpétuelle op.37," featuring Gallo as violin soloist, piano soloist John Novacek, violinists Benjamin Sung, Ingrid Capparelli Gerling and Randolph Kelly, cellist Maki Kubota and soprano Mariola Cantarero.

Simon Gallo's "Chausson" album

Written between 1889 and 1891, the concert, Gallo said, is unique in the chamber music repertoire. It premiered March 4, 1892, in Brussels, Belgium.

Gallo, a native of Venezuela, grew up in Europe, where he learned to love the music of France, including the compositions of Chausson. Gallo moved to the United States eight years ago.

"I had to work very hard, and I got the position at NMSU, and I am so grateful to my colleagues and my department and the whole structure of NMSU," Gallo said. "I feel at home."

Gallo is founder and artistic director of the Aruba Symphony Festival and Academy and several other international music festivals.

"I feel that my international background is an asset for our community," said Gallo, who plans to start an international music festival in Las Cruces, to focus in particular on the talents of musicians in Las Cruces, El Paso and Juarez.

Las Cruces, he said, is "a very beautiful town that could (benefit from) even better cultural development. Now we have to place Las Cruces in the international picture. We can be a music city."

Gallo, who founded the Las Cruces Youth Orchestra in 2018, said he is especially committed to enhancing music education and participation for the city's youth.

"I want to share with young people," Gallo said. "It is difficult sometimes to have big dreams. This recording is for a big achievement in my career. I hope for sure people will understand I'm here to support my community. I am here to support education."

The album will have June 19 worldwide distribution, under the IBS Classical label, Gallo said, and will be available via all digital platforms. Visit www.ibsclassical.es/product/chausson/, www.ibsclassical.es/digital/ and www.ibsclassical.es/physical/.

The album debuts, Gallo said, as people are waiting and excited to return to live concerts.

"How important it is to attend the concert, creating memories of 'yes, I went to the concert and it was a beautiful moment and it was a beautiful memory for all of us,'" he said.

In the meantime, enjoy the beautiful music of a French composer as interpreted by a young and talented Venezuelan violinist who now makes his home in Las Cruces, accompanied by other great musical artists.

Virtual summer camps planned to focus on STEM

NMSU REPORT

The Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) Outreach Center, housed in the College of Education at New Mexico State University, is offering five summer camps online beginning this month.

The camps are being offered to students exiting grades 5 through 8. Space is limited to 20 students per online camp session. Live camp sessions will be offered via Zoom, while camp content and student engagement will be shared via FlipGrid. Details on specific camp logins and connections will be sent in registration confirmation emails.

The STEM Outreach Center will provide the materials needed for all online camps. Details on how to obtain the materials will also be listed in the confirmation emails.

All camps will take place Monday through Friday in June and are offered at no cost. Camps are funded through local and state grants that provide out-of-school time programs to K-12 students.

To register, visit www.surveymonkey.com/r/STEMsummer2020.

This year's camps include:

- Fidgeteers: Students will spend the week building rockets, rubberband cars, towers and more while sharpening problem-solving and engineering skills. They will pit their creations against those made by other students in some friendly online competition and wrap up the week with two different rocket launches, followed by a virtual egg drop.
- Click Click Challenge: During the center's first virtual photography summer camp, students will test their creativity through the art of photography and get a glimpse of what it takes to be a photographer. Different daily challenges will be posted to complete, along with some photography basics. All photographers who finish the challenge will receive their photographs printed on photo paper, along with a t-shirt and a certificate.
- Escape from Disce: Strange things are happening in Disce and Resu, Sour and Gelo need help. Students will investigate catapults, ciphers, egg drops and more as they plan their escape and save the city.
- Let It Grow! The Science Behind How Plants Grow: Students will learn about soil, seeds, germination, photosynthesis and everything they need to know about how and why plants grow. Even though the camp is online, camp leaders will be sending students outside to conduct experiments and observation studies. Plus, students will be learning botany from actual biologists.
- STEM Explorers: Become a STEM Explorer and discover many of the STEM departments and careers hidden around the NMSU campus. Each day, students will virtually visit new departments and labs to participate in hands-on activities and figure out how they are part of STEM.

For more information about the 2020 virtual camps, email Paige Wheeler at pwheeler@nmsu.edu.

June 21 is Las Cruces Make Music Day virtual festival; registration open

BULLETIN REPORT

Make Music Day (MMD) was going to be a raucous and joyful street party with live events around the city to mark Las Cruces' first observance of what has been a global phenomenon for the last four decades. And then the coronavirus pandemic, as it has done with so many other large gatherings, scuttled those plans.

Now members of the Las Cruces Make Music Day Alliance are pivoting to create a free, online virtual festival of streamed and recorded showcases of local musical talent on international MMD, Sunday, June 21.

The alliance will stream live on its MMD Facebook page (Make Music Day- Las Cruces) and have pre-recorded performances from The Range, Las Cruces' only recording studio and event venue. Anyone interested in virtually sharing a musical performance with the community can contact planners at lascruces@makemusicday.org. The alliance welcomes other live streams and recordings from local musicians, music teachers and amateurs showing off their talents.

Free registration is open until the day of the festival at www.makemusicday.org/lascruces. Musicians of all levels, teachers, performers and local venues with an active social media presence are invited.

To watch or participate in the festival from a phone, laptop or tablet, there are tutorials and links on the website and Facebook page on how to go live and get access using social media.

MMD was born in France on the summer solstice in 1982 as the Fête de la Musique – literally, Music Party or Music Festival. The French Ministry of Culture launched the observance by taking to the airwaves and encouraging the nation's amateur and professional musicians to get out into the community and share their talents at public events. The French people so enjoyed the first Fête de la Musique that it has continued flourishing and spreading.

MMD is not quite a music festival, because it's not confined to one location and it's not completely organized, since musicians don't need official permission to perform in public.

As MMD Alliance Executive Director Aaron Friedman has said, "Make Music Day is kind of like Halloween for music – a day when regular folks are given permission to get out in the streets and share their love of music."

Until this year, MMD had not been observed in New Mexico. In December 2019, Friedman, with the assistance of the office of U.S. Sen. Tom Udall, D-N.M., a patron of the arts and sponsor of legislation aimed at boosting the creative arts economy, traveled to cities around the state, including Las Cruces, to encourage organized MMD events in their communities.

The Las Cruces MMD Alliance is comprised of community members from Visit Las Cruces, Doña Ana Arts Council and various musical groups and organizations.

"Make Music Day, Las Cruces is a great way to bring together musicians, artists, arts organizations and all Las Crucens to ease back into 'normalcy' by supporting and enjoying our local creative economy, while in solidarity with a worldwide event, as we are facing this global pandemic," said David Senk, who is the principal organizer of MMD-Las Cruces. The Range owner Logan Sage is co-producer, co-presenter.

MMD- Las Cruces will stream performances throughout the day on YouTube and Instagram, as well as on Facebook.

For more information, email lascruces@makemusicday.org or david@davidsenk.com.

Della and Grace

COURTESY PHOTO

State-sponsored virtual concert features local artists. Della Bustamante, left, and Grace Marks will perform as part of a virtual concert series presented by the New Mexico Department of Cultural Affairs. The concert will begin at 7 p.m. Friday, June 5, at www.facebook.com/NewMexicoHistoryMuseum/.
A native of Hatch, Bustamante has been performing and teaching music for more than 30 years in Nashville, Tennessee, and New Mexico. She is known for her eclectic blend of country, classic rock and jazz. Grace Marks, the granddaughter of Tony winner Mark Medoff, is a vocalist who plays the guitar, piano and xylophone. She graduated from Las Cruces High School in May and will study music this fall at the University of New Mexico. The concert is part of the department's Our Fair New Mexico series.

A spoonful of genius makes 'Mary Poppins' a treat

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in The Bulletin staff's series of reviews of movies available on various streaming services. Bulletin staff writer Mike Cook explains why "Mary Poppins" pops for him.

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

REVIEW

Have you ever made a list of the people you would most like to meet?

My list includes Dick Van Dyke, for many reasons, especially his performance in my all-time favorite movie: "Mary Poppins."

Bert the chimneysweep is almost as iconic as Mary Poppins herself, but I am even fonder of Van Dyke's portrayal of Mr. Dawes Sr., the elder board member at the bank where George Banks works. It's a small part, but the bit near the end of the movie when Banks is fired is one of my favorite scenes of all times. I fall off my chair every time Mr. Dawes Sr. says, "Impertinence, Sir!"

Van Dyke was hired to play Bert and is apparently remembered — he even publicly apologized for it — for one of the worst cockney accents in movie history. He lobbied Walt Disney to get the part of old Mr. Dawes.

The late David Tomlinson's portrayal of George Banks ("It's that Poppins woman!") is also one of my favorite performances of all time. Remember him and his wife, Winifred (Glynis Johns, in another absolutely brilliant performance), arguing about hiring a nanny while holding the furniture in place during a cannon firing by neighbor Admiral Boom?

Tomlinson's performance always reminds me of Alastair Sim's Ebenezer Scrooge in the 1951 film by that name — which is my second favorite movie ever. Tomlinson and Sim were completely believable as both their mean and cranky selves and as the joyous and reborn Scrooge and Banks.

And, of course, no one could ever top Julie Andrews' eponymous performance in this movie. It has to be one of the greatest in film history. "Spoon Full of Sugar" always makes me cry.

Clearly, Walt Disney knew how to cast a film. And there must have been something very special indeed about this cast. The movie was filmed May-September 1963, at Disney Studios in Burbank, California, and released Aug. 27, 1964 — almost 56 years ago.

Most of the actors were seasoned professionals well into adulthood even then, but many are still alive. Van Dyke is 94, Johns is 96, Andrews is 84. Richard M. Sherman, who co-wrote the music, is 91. His brother and collaborator, Robert B. Sherman, died at age 86.

Jane Darwell (the Bird Woman) was 87 when she died, Tomlinson was 83, Reginald Owen (Admiral Boom) was 85, Elsa Lancaster (Katie Nana) was 84. Author P.L. Travers lived to age 96. The man who painted 102 glass backgrounds of 1910 London for the film, Peter Ellenshaw, lived to 103.

Matthew Garber, who played young Michael Banks, however, died of haemorrhagic necrotising pancreatitis in 1977 at age 21. Karen Dotrice (Jane Banks) is alive and kicking at 64. She was 8 when the movie was made; Garber was 7.

"Mary Poppins" won five Oscars, a Golden Globe and two Grammy awards. Andrews won both the Oscar and Golden Globe for best actress in a leading role. Van Dyke was nominated for a Golden Globe for best actor.

"Mary Poppins" was nominated for the Oscar for best picture (Disney's only nomination in that category during his lifetime) but lost to "My Fair Lady." Andrews had played Eliza Doolittle in "My Fair Lady" on Broadway but lost the film role to Audrey Hepburn.

So, Mr. Van Dyke, if you're reading this week's Bulletin, drop me a line and let's have a spot of tea and talk about old times.

Don't distance yourself from this tasty taco treat

By LAS CRUCES COOKBOOK AUTHOR AND FOOD CONSULTANT KELLEY CLEARY COFFEEN, PH.D.,
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

Editor's note: Here is another simple and tasty recipe (we also ran one in the April 10 edition of the Bulletin) to make this time of social isolation a little easier — and more delicious.

10 Minute Roasted Chicken Soft Tacos

From Coffeen's "300 Best Taco Recipes," (Robert Rose Publishing, 2011)

Makes 8 tacos

There are many days that I just don't have enough time to create a delicious meal from scratch. That is why this chicken taco recipe is number-one on my list. I just swing by the market and grab a fresh roasted chicken, and dinner is ready in minutes.

» 1 cup chopped romaine lettuce
» 1 cup chopped fresh spinach
» 3 cups warm shredded deli-roasted chicken (see tip)
» 8 6-inch corn tortillas, skillet-warmed
» 2 ripe avocados, diced
» 1 red onion, minced
» 1/2 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese

1. In a medium bowl, combine lettuce and spinach.
2. To build tacos, divide chicken equally among tortillas. Top with lettuce mixture, avocados, red onion and cheese. Fold tortillas in half. Serve with a favorite red or green chile salsa.

Tip: Measure out three cups of chicken for this recipe. Reserve remaining chicken for future recipes Place in an airtight container and freeze for up to four months.

Tough times demand meditative thinking

GABRIEL ROCHELLE
Tales from the Cassock

The ugliness of the coronavirus epidemic becomes more apparent daily. I don't mean the ugliness of the coronavirus attack itself, which is difficult enough to comprehend and respond to either individually or collectively. I mean the ugliness that begins to surround the problem, swirling above it like a swarm of locusts.

This ugliness is the ongoing blame game that is taking place. In a way, it is understandable. When something bad happens, we look for reasons. We might look for reasons when good things happen, but we're less likely to be focused on them in such a situation. But when bad things happen, we usually ask "who's to blame?"

We look for a cause to exonerate ourselves from any responsibility. And that's what has begun to happen in recent weeks as all of us tire of the isolation and the economic slowdown that affects us, or the profound dislocation we have felt in our lives. As weeks go by, we are less willing to sit still during the crisis and more frustrated with our circumstances. It's a deadly and predictable syndrome.

Look, when the economy is going strong and the president takes the glory for that occurrence, we all secretly or openly scoff and say that it had little or nothing to do with that leadership. Why not the same equanimity when it comes to something like the coronavirus? All we can do is look at the responses and judge whether they are adequate or not.

The great Flu Epidemic of 1918 has been suggested as a model, but that occurred in vastly different cultural surroundings and with vastly different resources than we have today.

So here we are in 2020 confronting a faceless enemy. The cheap route is to crank up the blame game, point fingers at various national targets, or succumb to inane conspiracy theories. These knee-jerk responses are for those who have lost balance and cannot find it.

Calm yourselves, people: there is little or nothing you can do to allay the onslaught beyond preparing yourselves as much as possible via the proposed channels – masks, social distancing, washing – you know the drill by now. Unless you are directly involved in medical research, you're not going to solve the problem by weird ideas or weird science.

People who have deep spiritual grounding are not going to succumb to either fear or nonsense. They will look like ordinary people going through this mess, but with the inner resources to resist name-calling, false solution chasing and the blame game.

They will trust in genuine science as the aid to end the nightmare. They will trust that eventually the cloud will lift and "all shall be well, and all will be well, and all manner of things shall be well," as the 13th century English nun Julian of Norwich said.

Fr. Gabriel Rochelle is pastor of St Anthony of the Desert Orthodox Mission, Las Cruces. Services are held on Zoom. Visit www.stanthonylc.org.

Rights and responsibilities are very different

RABBI KAROL
Seeking Harmony

Some of the discussions swirling around the COVID-19 pandemic have focused on rights in relation to responsibilities.

One of the central teachings from my tradition, which I have shared in previous columns, relates to both rights and responsibilities. It comes from the ancient Jewish sage, Hillel.

He said, "If I am not for myself, who will be for me? If I am only for myself, what am I? If not now, when?"

My fifth-grade teacher in the Temple where I grew up asked us to interview family members about this saying.

Mostly, the responses I heard from my family back then, and interpretations that I have heard since, have viewed this saying as a progression.

First, advocate for yourself. Second, don't just advocate for yourself, because you don't live in this world by yourself. Third, there is always an urgency to do both, and to properly balance them.

Another famous statement from Hillel declared, "What is hateful to you, do not do to your neighbor." That teaching seems to complete his message of self-confidence that leads to mutual respect and consideration.

For me, our current situation calls on us to identify these and other values that are the most important to us, perhaps more than ever before. Hillel's declarations are a good start.

I recently asked members of all ages at Temple Beth-El to share the moral principles which they view as central to our lives at this time.

Their responses were instructive and inspiring:

- Taking care of your body and health
- Togetherness/community/connection
- Kindness
- Remembrance for loved ones, and for those who have died in recent months during this pandemic
- Peace in our homes and staying connected with family near and far
- Generosity: supporting people going through a hard time
- Acceptance and patience
- Being helpful and showing compassion
- Finding joy amidst everything going on
- Gratitude: finding something for which to be thankful at any time
- Visiting and staying in touch with people facing illness and health challenges, and praying for their recoveries.
- Treating everyone as equally valuable in this world
- Resilience
- Saving a life (or saving lives), so as not to jeopardize our lives or the lives of others
- Altruism: showing selfless concern for the well-being of others
- Noticing the wonders still happening around us in nature
- Truly trying to understand someone else's viewpoint
- Remembering and (hopefully) learning from the past
- And leaving the world better then when we got here

I received a request from the American Jewish Archives, which houses important historical documents from individuals and communities, to submit my sermons and articles that I have shared during the COVID-19 pandemic. They hope to chronicle, for the future, what we are thinking now, and the messages that clergy and community leaders are trying to convey to guide their communities in the best way possible.

You are now reading what I hope will be a part of that collection. We are living in a time that will be studied and discussed for decades to come.

So, every day, may we act in ways the reflect hope, peace and love.

If not now, when?

Rabbi Larry Karol has served as spiritual leader of Temple Beth-El (HYPERLINK "http://www.tbelc.org" www.tbelc.org) in Las Cruces since July 2011. His writings are available at rabbilarrykarol.blogspot.com.

Mountain View Market Cooperative employees Karla Arredondo and Adrian Lueras are part of the team that keeps the market clean while catering to the clientele.

Mountain View Market Cooperative (MVMC) — a longtime Las Cruces staple for local, natural, and organic foods, produce and wellness supplements — has adapted to COVID-19 with enhanced sanitization, personal protective gear, checkout shields and curbside delivery.

"We had begun the planning for a community-wide celebration for our 45th anniversary in April," said Corinne Whitmill, outreach coordinator at MVMC. "Once the COVID-19 pandemic began spreading, we realized we would need to cancel the celebration while we focused on ensuring the safety of our staff and shoppers."

Whitmill said steps were begun in the first several days of March and

Electronic Caregiver adds Amazon, Intel executive to staff

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Electronic Caregiver (ECG), a national health technology company based in Las Cruces, has hired former Amazon Web Services (AWS) and Intel executive Mark Francis as its chief digital health integration officer.

"Francis will use his extensive expertise in business development and management, along with his passion for emerging technology, to help organizations integrate ECG's solutions at scale, grow the business and prepare the company's game-changing products for market," ECG said in a news release.

"With high demand at other organizations for Mark's skills, wisdom and connections, we're honored to receive the validation expressed through his decision to join Electronic Caregiver's leadership team," said ECG CEO and founder Anthony Dohrmann. "Mark's time at AWS empowers him with an understanding of our well-architected infrastructure. His lengthy time at Intel Digital Health delivers an advantage of knowledge and insight to help us drive enhanced, digital-care solutions to patients, older adults, providers and payers around the world."

FRANCIS

The move to bring Francis aboard coincides with the growing demand for digital health in a COVID-19 world, ECG said in the news release. "ECG's technology, offering telehealth and remote patient monitoring services, has become a vital solution to the current crisis by helping to slow the spread and impact of COVID-19. In addition, the company is working to integrate coronavirus-specific features into their current products and is in the process of developing a virtual caregiver with Addison Care."

Addison is anticipated to be released in 2021, as a state-of-the-art, 3D-animated caregiver designed to engage with and help monitor the health of aging and chronically ill clients, as well as child patients, via touch-screen devices strategically placed throughout a residence.

"COVID-19 marks a tipping point for the adoption of digital health technologies," Francis said. "The resistance to adopting telehealth, remote health management, voice-driven technology and other emerging tech solutions has been knocked down. If companies can show results and demonstrate strong outcomes, then there is a real opportunity to make these changes permanent."

In addition to AWS and Intel, Francis has worked for smaller companies, nonprofits and the City of Boston, ECG said. He has 25 years of experience in aging service, technology have been evolving ever since. Protocols include regular sanitation of all high-touch surfaces with a bleach solution. Registers, countertop, scales and PIN pads are sanitized after every transaction.

Whitmill said MVMC has suspended the use of reusable bags for grocery purchases, instead offering customers the option of paper bags or cardboard boxes to carry out purchases.

In compliance with state mandates, the co-op's dining area closed, and all prepared foods were prepackaged, she said.

The store has reserved the first hour of each business day for serving seniors, immunocompromised and high-risk shoppers, she said. During regular hours, the store limits the number of shoppers to five at a time to ensure social distancing. Hand sanitizer and gloves are available for all shoppers and staff, and all staff members wear face masks.

In March, Whitmill said MVMC introduced call-in ordering.

"Shoppers call in their orders, pay over the phone and schedule a pick-up time. A customer service staffer does the shopping and brings the purchase out to the car. This service is completely free," she said. "All call-ahead orders must be placed at least an hour before the end of business for same-day service. Orders placed after the cut-off time are processed the following day.

In response to limited product availability from its distributors, Whitmill said MVMC has put some restrictions on purchases. Paper products are limited to two of each kind per shopper, and selected foods and supplements are limited to three of each kind as required by the state.

"MVMC has been fortunate to work with many smaller and local vendors to keep most of its products in stock," she said. "At this time, the produce department is fully stocked with local and certified organic fruits and vegetables. The grocery department is receiving full shipments again, and most essentials are available. We'll continue working with its distributors to ensure that good, healthy, and local food is available to all."

and product development.

"Over my 33-year career on Wall Street funding disruptive technology, it was always a huge shot in the arm to have a key opinion leader endorse your portfolio company," ECG President Joe Baffoe said. "Mark joining ECG takes it to an entirely new level. He has spent his entire career searching for solutions to shift the healthcare paradigm, making it patient-centric and to shift away from episodic care to predictive and preventative care. Mark deciding to be 'all in' is a testament to our team, our leadership, and our future."

ECG staff size more than doubled in 2019 and is nearing 150 full-time employees. ECG has invested more than $55 million and 10 years into research, development and a staged rollout of virtual care and health management solutions.

Jean Gilbert's background is in elementary education, and her passion in life is for animals. When the pandemic closed her avenues for reaching out to children about animal issues, she found a way to keep moving forward.

A longtime member of the Humane Society of Southern New Mexico (HSSNM), Gilbert has, for years, done outreach about the importance of spay/neuter, vaccinations, microchips, service animals and humane treatment of companion animals, usually to small groups.

When the pandemic hit, she aligned with Cruces Creatives and what evolved was a new education outreach program for HSSNM.

"I put together a lesson on rattlesnakes as part of [Cruces Creatives']

'Maker Kits' and collaboration with S.T.E.M. & Las Cruces Public Schools, with the kits included with kids' sack lunches. From rattlesnakes it grew, and I developed units on rabbits, cats and dogs for HSSNM's website," Gilbert said.

Each unit, she said, follows a template: three stories on the subject with links provided to the read a-louds, drawing, coloring, art and craft activities, puzzles or quizzes involving language or math skills and facts about the subject for further inquiry and research.

"Putting together the units has been fulfilling, especially at this time, when it's not possible to hold 'Fur'ever Friends' or 'Critter Connection' sessions in the schools or Boys & Girls Club,"

Gilbert said. "I love children's literature, so being able to promote some of my favorite kids' stories is exciting. Many are award-winning and truly essential to the curriculum I use."

Children who read one or more of the featured stories or provide answers to the puzzles/riddles with a reply to HSSNM are eligible for free prizes, including a book about animals and finger puppets, she said.

"It's fun learning about kindness to animals," she said, with a twinkle in her eye.

The four units, she said, are all accessible at www.hssnm.org with links provided to the story read a-louds.

When you practice, do so with purpose

CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Golf Doctor

"The more I practice, the luckier I get," quipped Gary Player several years ago. At the time, Player may have been thinking of Louis Pasteur, who once mused that "chance favors the prepared mind." Regardless, what we know is that to get better at anything, whether it's learning to play the piano or golfing your ball, practice is necessary. Here are some tips to make your practice time pay off to the max.

First, warm up properly with some stretching, and then start with easy swings with a wedge. The golf magazines and internet blogs, like morningread.com and golf.com, always have articles on good stretches. Torso twists can loosen the back, leg extensions release the butt, hips and thighs, and arm rotations (like doing the backstroke) free the shoulders.

When you start hitting balls, begin by hitting short shots, like wedges and 9 irons, then work up to long irons, woods and driver. All too often we see players warming up by pulling the driver out of the bag first, which is not the advised preparation. Also, use your pre-shot routine and swing rehearsal ritual before your practice shots. This gets you comfortable with the routine on the golf course, and it solidifies the process during our practice sessions.

Your practice should include work on trouble shots, such as from awkward lies, divots, hardpan and long grass. This builds the confidence of "I've got this shot," instead of lamenting "Oh my, what do I do here?" Practice the actual shots from the actual distances you encounter on the golf course, while visualizing the actual hole and conditions.

Swedish National coach Pia Nilsson, co-author with Lynn Marriott of "Every Shot Must Have A Purpose," urges her players to "replicate course conditions as much as possible" when practicing.

In her chapter "Prepare to Play Great," Nilsson has these ideas. "While warm-up practice gets you ready to play and maintenance practice improves your game by ingraining consistency, the third type of practice — preparation practice — is the most ambitious. Preparation practice has as its focus a goal in the future. It could be getting ready for a certain type of course, it could be adding a specific shot, or it could be more drastic overhaul of your game."

"Whatever your goal is, make sure that it and your expectations are paired with the right preparation," advises Kim Lewellen, the Women's Golf Team Coach of the University of Virginia. "Sometimes I think we as players are disappointed with our scores because we expect to do better, but have we really prepared fully to reach those expectations?"

Lewellen suggests that we have a plan for our practice before we get out of the car. She says we should set aside practice time and give our "full attention" to our effort, and then we will see the results.

Yes, I know, she coaches young college students, but we older adults can learn from her knowledge. We need to plan our practice sessions, pay full attention to what we do on the range and the practice green, and not treat practice as a boring, autopilot chore that we would rather do without.

Practicing to be prepared also means being prepared for golf mentally. When I served as performance coach for the Aggies men's golf team, I remember one talented player who loved to practice, but only with his swing. I had a difficult time persuading him that "just one more bucket of balls" (his words) would not solve his scoring problems.

The idea is to incorporate your pre-shot routine and your key swing thought into every practice shot and putt. Don't go to the range without knowing what and how to practice, because you'll simply be ingraining ineffective motions and bad habits.

Sam Snead once joked, "I figure practice puts brains in your muscles."

Summer Reading at the Library

Your imagination is a powerful thing! It can take you to places you've never been, let you experience moments in history, or transport you to fantastic worlds full of unbelievable things! What story will you tell?

Branigan Library is pleased to offer two ways to participate in our 2020 Summer Reading Program, online via Wandoo Reader, or with the traditional paper reading logs. Sign up today!

Our first week of Summer Reading asks you to complete challenges. Some of the things for this week are:

- Read for 60 minutes!
- Read in your pajamas!
- Research a major event that happened in the year you were born!
- Recreate a family photo—it's almost like traveling back in time!

You can find our Wandoo reader and information about where you can check in with us in-person (masks on of course!) at library.las-cruces.org. Click on "Summer Reading" for more details. And don't forget to share your reading accomplishments on social media using #LasCrucesReads!
